

Bhavya M.K. serves as a Scientist B at the Indian Council of Medical Research (ICMR) in Mumbai, a prestigious institution dedicated to advancing medical science and public health in India. In this role, Bhavya contributes to cutting-edge research that focuses on improving health outcomes through scientific inquiry and evidence-based interventions. As a key player in the scientific community, they work on vital projects that aim to tackle pressing health challenges, advancing medical knowledge and public welfare. Their work not only supports national health policies but also helps shape a healthier future for the country.